

EXPEDITED
REINSTATEMENT
(EXR)

Expedited Reinstatement is a safety net for people who return to work and later lose their SSDI or SSI benefits and payments. If your cash payments ended because of work and earnings, and you stop work within five (5) years of time when your benefits ended, Social Security may be able to start your benefits again.

If your benefits end because of work and earnings, you can request that your benefits start again without having to complete an application if:

- Your benefits stopped because of earnings from work
- You are not performing Substantial Gainful Activity during the month reinstatement is requested
- You have an impairment that is the same as or related to the original impairment that qualified you for benefits
- You request EXR within 5 years from the month that eligibility is terminated
